"It feels like a ball of fire rolling up and down the chest," is a common expression among sufferers from indigestion. Then use
Tarrant's Seltzer Aperient, get the system into a healthy condition so that the digestive organs can do their legitimate work, and you won't be troubled after eating. Dyspepsia is the fruitful mother of many sad diseases resulting from the torpid condition of the stomach, and this aperient carries off easily and pleasantly the cause, and this cures the disease.

Ben Hill.

"I have always believed the secessionists were the most damaging enemies the South ever had. But they did not intend damage. They intended to relieve the conscience of the North on the subject of slavery and preserve their own property on their own responsibility. They were mistaken, but they were not traitors."—Ben Hill's letter to Chittenden.

What a tender regard the South had for the conscience of the North!

They cared nothing for themselves, but out of regard for Northern conscience they tried to destroy the Union for the sake of slavery. How touching their liberality! What a sacrifice for our good! What an exhibition of disinterestedness on their part!

How beautifully tender was our treatment by them all through the war! How they loved us at Andersonville, in Mr. Hill's own State! Perhaps he was one of the directors in that merciful institution. We remember at Libby Prison we had the same show of affection. The South was full of it, all for our benefit. Yet we never knew it before. It is Hill's mission to teach it to us. How ungrateful we have been; we ought to thank him. What a mistake we have made! We shall never forgive ourselves for believing that your war was waged out of hate to us.

It seems then, that every bullet from the rifles you stole that came into our ranks was on a mission of mercy and love. Every boy in blue you starved to death, was starved in token of your love. It was your love that made our homes desolate. It was your love that should make the orphans all through the North, whose parents you killed, hold you in grateful memory. It was your love that killed President Lincoln. It was love that caused Blackburn to infect clothing with yellow fever and small pox to send to Lincoln and Northern cities as well. We are overwhelmed, Mr. Hill, with your people's regard for us. We must make amends.

Let Wilkes Booth have a monument. Let Lincoln's name be forgotten. Let Ben Butler carry out his scheme for the pensioning of rebel soldiers. Let us ask the South to forgive us, for they have been on a mission of love and regard for us.

But, Mr. Hill, we cannot afford to have such another demonstration of your love. It costs too much.

The North must keep solid until we are satisfied that no more such outbursts of affection will take place. Blackburn may say it is all sentiment, but the North feels that it is too real and must avoid any more of that kind of flirting. REPUBLICAN.

At This Season.

Every season has its own sacred and peculiar phenomenon. At this season of the year you will read, on an average, of twenty-three men in as many States, who have been in the common habit of hiding their savings in the parlor stove, and whose wives have, with surprising unanimity, looked upon the money as so much paper and burnt it up incontinently. These stories are all true. There is no doubt of that. All we wish to do here is to call attention to unvarying phases in these phenomena, which cannot be otherwise than eminently interesting and instructive to the thoughtful and reflective mind. In the first place, as we have mentioned above, the amount is always just one thousand dollars (the Summer savings of the man whose wages amount to $500 a year). To proceed, all Americans invariably use the parlor stove as a money safe; and the women of this free and enlightened land are so little acquainted with the vile lucre that they cannot tell it from common green paper. But the strangest thing about this, after all, is that in none of these recitals are we told of broken stoves, lengths of stove-pipes suddenly emerging through the shattered windows of the domicile, or even a salmagundi of masculine objurgations, and women's weepings, of the I'll-go-home-to-mothers on the one hand, and I-don't-care-if-you-do's on the other.—Boston Transcript.

The Old Cent.

As the old "red cent" has now passed out of use, and, except rarely, out of sight, its history is a matter of interest. The cent was first proposed by Robert Morris, the great financier of the revolution, and was named by Jefferson two years after. It began to make its appearance from the mint in 1792. It bore the head of Washington on one side, and thirteen links on the other. The French revolution soon created a rage for French ideas in America, which put on the cent, instead of the head of Washington, the head of the Goddess of Liberty—a French liberty, with neck thrust forward and flowing locks. The chain on the reverse side was displaced by the olive wreath of peace; but the French liberty was short-lived, and so was her portrait on our cent. The next head or figure that succeeded this—the staid, classic dame with a fillet around her hair—came into fashion about thirty or forty years ago, and her finely-chiselled Grecian features have been but slightly altered by the lapse of time.

EUROPE.

Cotton Failure.

LIVERPOOL, Oct. 25.—Tomlinson & Co., cotton brokers of this city, have suspended. Market very feverish owing to speculators having bought up enough cotton to create artificial scarcity and to squeeze the largest possible difference out of sellers of October delivery. Confidence is shakey.

Next week there will doubtless be extreme pressure under the October corner, and sinister rumors are afloat touching the suspended firm of Tomlinson & Co.

Bismarck and Andrassy Exchange Winks.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—Telegrams from Berlin and Vienna concur in stating that the alliance between Germany and Austria is not a written treaty signed by the emperors, but is in the form of a memoranda, which Bismarck and Andrassy exchanged and communicated to their respective sovereigns who have approved thereof.

Cuban Slavery.

MADRID, Oct. 25.—The Spanish Ministerial Journal says that Senor Castello like Martinez Campos favors immediate abolition of slavery in Cuba.

The Greek Frontier.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 25.—The minister of foreign affairs has addressed a note to the powers, pointing out that the demands of Greece exceed the frontier line indicated in the treaty of Berlin. The Greeks laid down in detail their frontier line at Friday's sitting.

Yankee Products Abroad.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—A foot of snow fell this morning. Great damage to fruit and shade trees is regorted.

British Justice.

A Cabul dispatch states that Kotwal of Cabul and four others have been hanged for complicity in the massacre of the British embassy. There has been fighting between Ali Kheyl and Shutargardan in which the enemy was defeated with heavy loss. Communications since have been re-opened.

An Irish American.

DUBLIN, Oct. 25.—Leonard, an Irish American, has been arrested at Charlestown, County Mayo, Ireland, for posing threatening notices on his house. Documents implicating him in illegal movements were found on him.

The Sick Man of Europe.

BERLIN, Oct. 25.—Bismarch is suffering acute pain, and has summoned his favorite physician to Varsin.

Southern Civilization.

LONDON, Oct. 27.—A dispatch to the Times from Rome says an American lady and gentleman named Beron were attacked in a railway carriage on the Alta Italia line a few days ago by two men, one of whom drew a revolver and the other a knife. After a violent struggle, the robbers succeeded in getting possession of the gentleman's purse and watch and escaped by dropping off the foot board when the train slackened its speed.

The registration of New York Saturday was 34,870. Total for four days, 100,073.

Cooper, the American forger, has been sentenced to five years penal servitude at London.

Policeman Kennedy of Milwaukee has began a libel suit for $25,000 against the Sentinel.

Assistant Postmaster Henry S. New of Pittsfield, is held in $1000 for defrauding the government by using cancelled stamps.

The women at Frederickton, Ohio, raided upon liquor saloons Saturday, smashing one and compelling others to give up the business. Latest from Frederickton, the scene of the raid by women, is that the druggists who were threatened have caused warrants to be issued for the arrest of the women.

Three thousand lives have been lost by the floods in Spain. At Alicante the waters form a lake 30 leagues in length. The loss of property exceeds 50,000,000 francs.

Further details of the burning of the steamer Nuena Pajara state that the engineers were suffocated to death at their engines. The heat of the fire was extreme, and when it reached the petroleum and other inflammable material of which the cago consisted, a tremor seemed to go through the entire length of the main deck as if the vessel were bursting asunder from the terrible pressure.

THE ALLEN PRIZE.

King Corn and His Courtiers.

What York County Farmers Boys Are Doing.

[Special to the Press.]

ALFRED, Oct. 25.—Although it was neither new moon or feast day at Alfred Saturday, yet the quiet ordinary week was broken by the assembling of the boys competing for the Stillman B. Allen corn prizes with their parents and friends, the measurers in the different towns. The Sanford Band did their best in the way of music, and the Town Hall was finely decorated with most inviting traces of corn taken from the prize specimens, which traces were on exhibition for additional prizes offered by J. & N. Dane of Kennebunk.

Mr. Hall, the President of the York County Agricultural Society, was delayed in making a report on account of several returns of measurers being behind time, and as there are several contestants who will be so near alike, and one or more of the returns from those having the higher figures are said to be irregular and not according to the rules sent out, Mr. Hall has wisely decided to announce the prizes at a future day after further examination, although it is possible they may be paid as now appears by the following names and figures taken from the measurers' certificates:

It will be seen that 32 of the boys raised upon one-eighth of an acre over 1000 pounds of ears, and of them, six raised over 1100 pounds, five raised over 1200 pounds, one over 1300 and one 1404 pounds; so that if all is regular in the returns no boy not having 1200 pounds upon his return will get a prize. These prizes, it will be recollected, are $100 for the most, $50 for the second best, and $10 each for the next five.

The Dane prizes for the best traces, were paid on the spot, to Chas. A. Tibbetts of Sanford, $5; John F. Goodwin of Shapleigh, $3; Willie E. Storer of Kennebunk, $2.

The entire result of this experiment will be tabulated and so arranged that valuable information in regard to kind of seed, mode of preparing land and manures, methods of cultivation and probable profits from attempts upon larger lands may be expected.

Yours, DOOMY.

MARINE NEWS.

Disaster to a Portland Schooner.

PROVINCETOWN, Oct. 25.—Schooner P. S. Lincoln, of and from Portland for New York with lumber, was struck by a squall yesterday morning, 25 miles north from Race light. The squall carried away the main boom. The schooner made this port for repairs.

A Maine Vessel on Fire.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The schooner Julia Baker, of Gardiner, Me., caught fire from the cook's gallery to-day. The foresail, foreboom and gaff were destroyed. The cargo of lumber caught, but with outside assistance the flames were extinguished and the vessel saved.

Sailor Drowned off Mt. Desert.

MACHIAS, Oct. 15.—Herbert Allen, mate of schooner Stephen T. Watts, was lost yesterday, off Mt. Desert. He fell from the jibboom, and, owing to the rough sea, could not be rescued.

MAINE.

Rearrested.

SALEM, Oct. 26.—Joseph H. Bousiy, who escaped from the Newburyport Court House in May, 1877, while on trial for ravishing two little girls, was arrested Saturday in Andover, Maine, by Turnkey Lewis Manning of Salem jail.

Postal Appointments.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Postmaster appointed—John H. Chase, North Waterboro, York county, Me.

Name changed—Industry, Franklin county, Me., to Allen's Mills. Moses M. Luce appointed postmaster.

Scribner Convicted.

AUGUSTA, Oct. 25.—The jury in the Scribner trial went out at 5 o'clock this afternoon, and in half an hour brought in a verdict of murder in the first degree.

RAILROAD ACCIDENT.

Another Case of Forgetfulness.

BANGOR, Oct. 26.—There was a collision on the Bangor & Piscataquis Railroad Saturday night, which overturned the engine and broke both legs and badly scalded the engineer, Fred Greene, of Mattawamkeag. The accident occurred at Low's bridge between Dover and Guilford, where three cars had been left on the main track to be loaded as both conductor and engineer had been informed that the cars were there, and it is supposed that they must have forgotton, although this seems almost incredable The full particulars have not been received here.

Arrest of a Wife Murderer.

DETROIT, Mich., Oct. 25.—Matthew Fitch, who killed his wife from whom he had been estranged and his four year old daughter near Hadley on the 19th inst., was arrested this morning and brought to Lapier. He had a narrow escape from lynching by the people of Hadley while being taken to jail.

Schafer won the billiard match at New York Saturday, by a score of 3,000 to Slocum's 2,601.

THE COMING CANDIDATE.

Senator Blaine the Choice of the West.

Congressman Burrows Discusses the Strength of Grant and Blaine.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—A reporter of the Tribune had an interview with Congressman Burrows of Michigan last night which resulted in the following expressions of opinion. Being asked as to his choice for the Presidency Mr. Burrows said:

"My personal preference for a candidate is Blaine. He is a royal, whole-souled man, and is today, as he deserves to be, the most popular of all the Republican leaders."

"How do the Republicans of your state feel on the subject?"

"A large majority of them, I believe, have a strong preference for Mr. Blaine. If, however, Senator Chandler desires the vote of the state in the convention, he will of course get it. The compliment will help him to a reelection to the Senate, and I presume he would like it for that reason."

"Is not Chandler a Grant man?"

"Very strongly so, I understand."

"Then if he controls your delegation it will be turned over to Grant after a complimentary vote for Chandler."

"Probably—that is, if Grant is a candidate. But the choice of the masses of the party in Michigan is Blaine."

"If Grant is not a candidate will the Chandler influence be thrown for Blaine?"

"As to that I can't say. I don't know who is Senator Chandler's second choice."

"What do you think of the Grant 'boom'?"

"It will culminate with Grant's reception at Chicago. We can't tell how much of it has reference to his fame as a soldier and to the honors paid him abroad, and how much signifies a desire to make him President a third time. After the Chicago reunion, followed perhaps by a few receptions in Eastern cities, the enthusiasm of welcoming him back home will be over, and we shall then know how much political purpose there is behind these demonstrations. The Republican nomination next year is not going to be made with a whoop and a hurrah. The sober thought of tho party will have all the winter and spring to consider carefully the question of a candidate, and I believe it will control the convention."

"Do you think Blaine is growing in popularity?"

"Yes, very rapidly. His reception in all the states he has visited this fall proves that. He is much stronger with the people now than in 1876. Another thing must be considered in estimating his prospects—General Grant can do nothing to increase his popularity after the demonstrations welcoming him back are over; but Mr. Blaine is in the Senate, and not a week will pass from December till the convention meets without an opportunity occurring for him to say something that will arouse the popular heart. Let Ben Hill, for instance, say in a speech what he has just said in his letter, and let Blaine skin him again, why, the whole North would ring with his name."

"Is it not probable that the Southern Republicans will be able to control the nomination, and will they not be solid for Grant?"

"They ought to refrain from taking any part in the contest about candidates until they see who is the preference of the Northern delegates. They cannot give the slightest assistance toward electing the Republican ticket next year. Not a single Southern state can by any possibility be rescued from the Democrats. The Southern Republicans, if they are wise, will therefore be content to support the man whom a majority of the Northern delegates think can make the best run in the states we expect to carry,"

THE INDIANS.

The Troublesome Reds.

OGDEN, Utah, Oct. 25.—A man who arrived at Green River this evening, reports that 200 horses belonging to Edwards, on Snake river, have been stolen by the Indians. Three of Edwards' boys are missing, and the ranch is deserted. Settlers are moving out of Brown's Hole, on Green river. The mail due this evening from Utah agency has not arrived.

The Reported Uprising False.

The mail from Mintah Agency arrived at Green river this evening with dates to the 23d inst. The reported uprising of Mintah Utes is false.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Secretary Schurz, at a late hour tonight, received a dispatch from Special Agent Adams, dated "Camp at White River, Oct. 24, via Rawlins, Oct. 25." He reports that he visited the camp of the hostiles between Grand and Gunnison rivers, and that after holding conferences with them, the captive women and children were delivered to him without conditions. He then proceeded to Gen. Merritt's camp on White river, where he arrived on the night of the 23d. He informs the Secretary that, after conference with Gen. Merritt, he will return to the camp of the hostiles, and proceed thence to Chief Ouray's home, at Los Pinos, where he expects to arrive on the 30th, with a view to accomplishing the other purposes of his mission, in which he hopes to be equally successful. He adds an expression of great hopefulness that further hostilities may be wholly averted. Gen. Adams also reports that after leaving the hostiles' camp, he met Indian runners who reported that their "look-outs" had a fight on the 20th, with a hunting party from Merritt's camp, brought about accidentally by the scouts firing on an Indian, in which a scout named Hume, Lieut. Weir and two other whites and two Indians were killed. The Indians claim that they were posted at that place merely to observe the movements of troops; that they did not want to fight, and did not fight until after Hume had killed one of their number. In telegram, reference is made to dispatch to the secretary from Plateau creek, an the 21st, announcing the rescue of the captive women and children, and probably furnishing details of the conference, but that dispatch has not yet been received. The dispatch received to-night was started from White river agency yesterday morning. Secretary Schurz is very earnest and enthusiastic in his commendation of the intrepidity with which Gen. Adams went among the hostiles to rescue the captives, and the evident skill and good judgment he has displayed in the conduct of the whole business with which he was instrusted.

Another Sixty Days' War.

Secretary Schurz and Gen. Sherman had a conference with the President today at the Executive Mansion, and subsequently Secretary Schurz telegraphed additional instructions to Special Agent Adams, who is expected to arrive at Los Pinos Agency on the 30th. They all continue to think the prospect of an early and satisfactory settlement of Ute troubles very encouraging.

THE JUVENILE "UNCLE TOM."

What the Secretary of Children's Protective Society Has to Say of the Performance.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—Mr Loring Moody, Secretary of the Massachusatts Children's Protective Society, visited New Bedford, Saturday, to witness a performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by the juvenile company, which has been forbidden to play in Boston, and thus expresses his opinion of it: "As some doubt exists in regard to the character and influence of the dramatic performance of the juvenile "Uncle Tom's Cabin," I went to New Bedford on Saturday and witnessed the play on behalf of the Children's Protective Society, and I am constrained to say that I not only did not find anything objectionable in the performance on the score of good morals or manners, but, on the contrary, much which is very commendable. The children are all under that kind of training which makes them polite, courteous and kind to all. They are accompanied by teachers who, I understand, give them the same kind of education they would receive in the common schools, and members of them by their parents who are solicitous and watchful of their welfare, and the children themselves are a happy group, as I had full opportunity for knowing, having mingled with them freely in the same car on returning to Boston. And they all take pride in their work, and should be encouraged and strengthened therein, rather than repressed; and weakened, many of the characters being well done. Blanche Sherwood, 7 years old, as Topsy, is a wonder and almost, if not quite, inimitable, and must be fully up to Mrs. Stowe's original conception; and so her personation alone is worth the price of admission. But, where all is so well done, it may seem invidious to particularize. And then many of he scenes, both on moral and religiiou grounds, are quite impressive. Added to this, a number of these children have parents in feeble health, who are unable to provide for their wants, and while the children are being educated and trained to good habits and manners, they are able to support themselves and those who would ocherwise be thrown upon public charity. And, considered from every standpoint, I cannot see on what ground the Children's Protective Society can reasonably object to the performance of this drama anywhere."

NEW YORK.

A Fool and His Money.

NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Early to-day Officer Nealis of the Fourteenth precinct arrested a drunkard, who was sitting in the gutter opposite No. 72 Mulberry street. A crowd of people surrounded him, and he amused himself by throwing $20 gold pieces for them to scramble after. At the Mulberry street station house gave his name as James W. Brewer, but refused to furnish any other information. In his possession were found mining stock certificates, gold bonds and checks representing $22,000, $341 in currency, and $61 in gold and silver coin.

Illicit Distillery in Connecticut.

NORWICH, Conn., Oct. 25.—Yesterday Internal Revenue Collector Seldon, accompanied by Marshal Bates and others, went to Coventry and destroyed an illicit distillery which had just been put in operation, with 600 gallons of mash, a quantity of molasses and a little liquor. They arrested M. M. Lilybridge of Coventry, John E. Grant of Mansfield, and A. E. Pearl of Willimantic, on the premisss, and they were sent to Hartford.

More Body Snatching.

ASHTABULA, O., Oct. 26.—Dakin and W. Hoyt, two medical students from Cleveland, were arrested here today for body snatching. Two men arrived here Saturday night, hired a horse and buggy, went to the county infirmary farm, five miles east of here, opened the grave of Mrs. Goodrich, an old lady 75 years of age, who was buried last Tuesday, packed the body in a trunk, and were about to take the train for Cleveland when arrested.

GRANT'S LUCK.

A Good Omen at Oakland.

THE FAREWELL RECEPTION AS SAN FRANCISCO.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 25.—This afternoon Gen. Grant attended an exhibition trot gotten up for his benefit at Oakland Park. He arrived on the ground at 11 p. m., escorted by ex-Mayor Pardee of Oakland, President of the Golden Gate Park Association, under the auspices of which the exhibition was given, Mayor Bryant of San Francisco, Senator Sharon and Charles Crocker. A large crowd had gathered, who greeted the ex-President with hearty cheers. After a brief hand-shaking and an excellent lunch the General was escorted to the judges' stand and the exercises began. The day was fine and the track in excellent condition. The first event was a trot between a field of eight third-class trotters, who were so evenly matched that the race was rather interesting, though the best time made, 2.28, was slow. Between heats St. Julian was brought out to beat the best time made by Rarus. St. Julian was followed at a short distance by a running horse. At the word St. Julian went under the wire on a square trot, and for the entire mile never made a skip or break, coming in in the unprecedented time of 2.12¼, and apparently but little worse for his magnificent efforts. He was driven by Orrin Hickox. The result was received with prolonged cheering, Gen. Grant doffing his hat and making as much noise as any one. The General returned to San Francisco at 5 o'clock. This evening he attended a grand farewell banquet at the Palace Hotel, and at about midnight will take a special train for Virginia City, on his way East.

At the Palace Hotel this evening General Grant was tendered a farewell banquet by the citizens of San Francisco. The company consisted of about 250 of the most eminent men of the city. The menu was engraved on solid silver intended to serve the guests as souvenirs of the occasion. That prepared for Gen. Grant was of massive gold. Mayor Bryant presided and toasted the guest of the evening in an appropriate speech, to which General Grant responded as follows:

"Gentlemen of San Francisco—The unbounded hospitality and cordiality I have received since I first put my foot on the soil of California has taken deep root in my heart. It was more than I could have expected, and while it entailed some little fatigue at times I assure you I have been grateful for it. I have previously been in California and on the Pacific coast, but have been away a quarter of a century, and when I landed here the last time I found that none of the pioneers had grown old, but if I should remain away another quarter of a century I might be compelled to confess that some of you had grown old. (Applause) and I want to see you again in your prime and youth. Gentlemen, in taking my departure, I want to thank you all for the farewell reception given me this evening, and to express the hope that whether or not I am to have the happiness ever to visit your city again I shall at least meet one and all of you elsewhere, and if it should not be in this life that it may be in a better country."

The evening passed pleasantly, many of the gentlemen present responding happily to the sentiments given; but at a comparatively early hour the party broke up with many expressions of mutual pleasure and good will, and at midnight Gen. Grant and party proceeded to the special train in waiting and left for Virginia City.

WASHINGTON.

Attempts to purify the House.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 55.—Clerk Adams of the House of Representatives is expected here next week to get the hall of the House and the new colonade, which has been made in the rear of the lobby, properly furnished. The hall proper will be furnished the same as last year, the old green carpet, already well worn, having been patched up for use for another season. The new colonade, however, will be handsomely furnished with sofas, easy chairs, carpets, etc., which will be made for it especially. Architect Clark of the United States capitol building says that if Congress will adopt the plan he suggests in his annual report, of planting a row of trees on the long lands south of the House wing, he will guarantee that the air which penetrates the hall of the House will be much purer. His theory is that the malaria which, at certain seasons of the year, impregnates the air, comes from the Potomac flats, and is wafted directly to the capitol building. Should his plan be adopted, he says, the trees would not only deflect the air currents, but would at the same time purify the atmosphere, because it is a well settled hygienic rule that vegetation absorbs to a great extent the poisonous gases of the air. He thinks, too, that the proposed plan would not only relieve the present eyesore which meets the vision looking south from the House wing, but that it would lead eventually to Congress acquiring the ground, as he thinks it should, and the enlargement and ornamentation of the capitol park. Mr Clark will endeavor to have the joint committee on public buildings and grounds recommend legislation looking to these suggested and needed improvements.

The English and Russian Missions.

The facts about the English and Russian missions are that Hamilton Fish can go to London if he desires, and that R. C. McCormick, late commissioner to the Paris exhibition, etc., etc., can go to St. Petersburg if he will accept the place. The administration is desirous of selecting gentlemen for these positions to whom there can be no objection whatever; but, in view of the character of the opposition in the Senate, it has been thought best not to send any one to either place until after the nominations shall have been made to and confirmed by the Senate. This is the explanation of the delay.

On the Anxious Seats.

The commissions of 178 postmasters expire during the four months after the commencement of the next session of Congress. Among them are the following: Maine—Farmington, Houlton and Portland. New Hampshire—Franklin. Vermont—Bennington, Brandon and St. Johnsbury. Massachusetts—Athol, Boston, New Bedford, Newton Centre, Orange and Springfield. Rhode Island—East Greenwich. Connecticut—Bridgeport, Collinsville, Danbury, Essex, Greenville, Hartford, Meridan and Wallingford.

Who is "Him?"

The Sunday Gazette of this city (Dem.) counsels Southern members of the party, on the reassembling of Congress, to pass a bill creating the office of Captain General, with a salary ample to maintain the dignity of the station, and declaring him General in Chief of the army during life.

YELLOW FEVER.

The Memphis Death List.

MEMPHIS, Oct. 25.—One new case and two deaths were reported today. Total cases for the week 31—whites, 21; colored, 10; total to date, 1511. Total deaths from yellow fever for the week, 14—whites, 12; colered, 2; total to date, 470. The first through train from Louisville with 60 passengers, arrived this afternoon. Brownsville, Tenn., raised the quarantine today.

The Camps Broken Up.

Another heavy frost last night. A thin coating of ice formed on pools of water in the suburbs. A thermometer placed by a signal service officer on the ground as a test marked 32½° at 4 o'clock this morning.

Steamer Hard Cash from St. Louis arrived this morning at 9 o'clock, being the first boat to land at the wharf since July 24th. Weather clear and cool.

President Porter of this taxing district officially notified the governor today, that the epidemic is ended. The camps will be broken up Monday.

Return of the Refugees.

One case was reported today. About 200 absentees have returned this afternoon. The Howards will disband their medical corps.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 25.—About fifty Memphians have left for home since the announcement of the end of the epidemic. About 250 are yet here and they hold a meeting today to make arrangements for starting tomorrow.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 26.—The executive committee of the State Board of Health have relieved all health officers and pickets from duty, and has authorized the running of all railroad trains. The only restrictions are upon the stoppage of trains at Forest City and receipt of freight or passengers at Memphis for the present.

THE BOOM IN COAL.

An Advance in Wages of Colliers.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 26.—The Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Company have issued a circular to the trade, announcing that the market for coal has now reached such a condition that those who desire to advance the prices can safely do so, and that on the 1st of November the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Co. will make an advance of the prices of coal, and the Philadelphia & Reading Railroad Co. will advance its tolls ten cents per ton from Schuylkill Haven to Philadelphia, making the rate $1.80 per ton, trusting that other companies carrying to Philadelphia will follow the advance, but are confident whether they do or not that the company can dispose of its entire tonnage at higher prices. This advance of ten cents per ton will raise the minimum which governs the wages of employes of coal and iron companies from twelve to only eight per cent. below the basis, and the wages of the employes of the railroad company for November will be advanced five per cent., and in the future for every advance of ten cents in the rates of tolls and transportation from Schuylkill Haven to Philadelphia, between $1.80 and $2.00, an advance of 5 per cent. will be made in the wages of the employes of the railroad company.

Irish Agitation.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 25.—A mass meeting of Irish residents was held this afternoon for the purpose of considering the condition of affairs in Ireland and the relations of landlords and tenants. The meeting was largely attended. Addresses were made by Fathers Finn and Moynihan, Major E. A. Burke and Col. Meglolin. Resolutions were adopted approving the course of Mr. Parnell and others, and sympathizing with the oppressed in Ireland.

Liability of Church Property.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 25.—It is estimated that the amount collected in aid of Archbishop Purcell does not exceed $75,000. It is not enough to pay interest on the debt since assignment. It has been decided that the Archbishop's assignees shall bring the suit to test question of liability of church property generally throughout the diocese for the Archbishop's debts.

FIRE RECORD.

Extensive Fire in Hawkinsville, Ga.

MACON, Oct. 25.—An extensive in Hawkinsville broke out at 1 o'clock today in Bozeman's warehouse. Help was telegraphed for from Macon, and two steamers and firemen were sent on a special train. Bozeman's warehouse was burned. P. C. Clegg & Co., L. H. & C. C. Bozeman, J. F. Lewis & Co., Lewis, Leonard & Co., D. Rhodes and J. W. Boys were heavy losers. Masonic Hall and the library were also consumed. Jelks Bros. lose $10,000; W. R. Steele, $5000 on cotton; no insurance. Fifteen hundred bales were burned. Loss, $110,000; insurance $50,000.

At South Boston—Loss $300.

BOSTON, Oct. 25.—A fire was extinguished in the two-story wooden tenement house, 23 First street, South Boston, Saturday evening, by members of steamer B, without an alarm. The fire originated on the second floor in a kitchen. Damage about $300. The property belonged to Coleman Foley.

At Lynn—Loss $400.

Fire Saturday night in the dwelling house 10 Buffum street, Lynn, did $400 damage. Insured. The house is owned by Dr. B. Percival. Small damage resulted to the household goods of Mrs. Crowell.

At East Weymouth—Loss $150.

A barn belonging to Mrs. John Daly on Pleasant street, East Weymouth, was destroyed by fire Saturday evening. Loss about $150; insured in the Hingham Mutual office.

Slight Blaze at Wakefield.

Fire in an unoccupied house belonging to Dr. S. C. Richardson, on Main street, Wakefield, Saturday afternoon, did slight damage.

Female College Burned.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 25.—The Monroe Female College at Forsyth, Georgia, was burned todvy. Loss $20,000.

DOES TALMAGE DRINK?

A Tempest in a Tea-Pot.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.—The Sun says the members of the Brooklyn Presbytery are inquiring whether Talmage drank champagne while he was in Europe. Letters and papers from England say he did. The Fountain, Rev. Joseph Parker's paper in London, published the charge that at the Good Templars' jubilee in Crystal Palace, July 8th, Talmage declared himself a tectotaller, and on that day he drank champagne at dinner. Talmage says he did not drink wine on the above date, to which Dr. Parker replies that Talmage was seen to drink time after time while in England, and withdraws every friendly word he had written about him.

BEFORE JUDGE VIRGIN.

Robert D. Dunning vs. Androscoggin Railroad Co. George F. Dunning vs. Androscoggin Railroad Co. Two cases for trespass tried together. Reported in our last issue. Verdict for plaintiffs; Robert D. Dunning $425, George F. Dunning $175.

Strout & Holmes for plaintiff.
J. B. Cotton for defendants.

John Lindsey vs. George R. Davis. Assumpsit on a promissory note for $180, dated February 13, 1877, signed by George F. Ayer, payable to his order at any bank in Portland three months after date, indorsed by George F. Ayer and George R. Davis.

The defense is that the note has been altered—raised from $100 to $180—without the defendant's consent, since he indorsed it. This is the second trial of this case, there being disagreement at former trial.

Cobb for plaintiff. Locke for defendant.

Charles Trott, libellant, vs. Abbie A. Trott. Libel for divorce. Divorce decreed.

Locke for libellant.

BEFORE JUDGE KNIGHT.

SATURDAY.—William Wentworth. Intoxication. Fined $3 and costs.

John Gallagher. Intoxication. Sixty days at labor in the county jail. Committed.

Brief Jottings.

Cold day Saturday. Mercury 26° at sunrise, 42° at noon, 38 at sunset; wind northwest.

Cool and bright yesterday. Mercury 28° at sunrise, 46° at noon; wind west.

There were 21 deaths recorded in this city the past week.

Berlin Mills and Brown's wharves are receiving extensive repairs.

A man had a $20 ulster taken from his team at the head of Central wharf Saturday.

A thief tried to steal a pair of boots at Davis & Cartland's, Saturday afternoon. He was arrested.

The value of foreign exports last week was $52,149.68. The amount of long lumber exported was 127,278 feet.

There is a corner in linseed oil and none could be bought Saturday by our wholesale dealers. Sugar declined Saturday to Friday's figures.

The policemen's ball will occur at City Hall next Wednesday evening. It bids fair to be a success. Already a large number of tickets have been sold.

The cars on the early freight train from Boston left the track at Saco, Friday, but no detention was caused to passenger trains and only one car was damaged.

The Sun says it is a very singular circumstance that the burial lots of the late Dr. Moses Dodge and Hon. Moses M. Butler joined each other in Evergreen Cemetery.

The Telephone Exchange now reaches 164 points in and around Portland. Mr. Livermore has the credit of establishing the best telephone system in New England.

A man from out of town, early Saturday morning, fell in a fit on the sidewalk on Congress Square. He was carried into Dr. Dana's drug store and medical assistance procured.

Extensive repairs are in progress upon the Chestnut street M. E. church. A poplar tree had taken root between the tower and the roof and attained a height of two and a half feet. It has been trimmed and permitted to remain in its novel position.

The people of the Cape are earnestly discussing the subject of a bridge from the city dock to Muzzy's pasture, near Ferry Village. It is claimed that it would greatly facilitate business, and of vast convenience to many now so dependent upon the ferry to reach the city.

At the regular shoot of the Portland Cadets, Sergeant C. S. Coburn won the badge, making 22 out of a possible 25. The next best shot was that of Will Hazelton, who scored 21. This shows that Billy can shoot better than he can fish. In the match between Capt. Eaton and ex-Captain Winslow, the latter won by one point.

The Trigamy Case.

We have received a letter from Mr. S. O. Rogers, city clerk of Bath, stating when he became city clerk last March the marriage intentions of William H. Williams of that city and Mrs. Emma A. Henderson were recorded in the proper book. Williams' right name was Henry and had been a resident of Bath thirteen years. As both parties were then receiving assistance from the city, and as Mr. Rogers learned that Mrs. Henderson had a residence in Biddeford, he refused to issue a license, and they were never married in Bath.

The PRESS stated Williams came from Augusta and, intended to say, he and Mrs. Burns were married in Augusta. Mr. Baker states that Mrs. Burns told him, in the presence of other parties, that she went first from Bucksport to Bangor and thence to Augusta, about three weeks ago, in which latter city Williams had their intentions of marriage published and they were married there on her arrival. So that Mrs. Burns, Osgood, Williams must still be accounted a trigamist.

Personal.

Hon. Eugene Hale is improving.

Deputy Marshal Black is in Connecticut spending his vacation.

Governor-to-be Davis of Maine will speak this week in Massachusetts. He will speak in Lowell, Gloucester, Milford and other towns, but the dates have not yet been fixed. Another Maine man, Mr. Lewis Barker, will also speak there this week.

Mr. J. E. Fowler of the Mechanic Blues, reported missing, has turned up all right. Mr. Fowler left the city on the train Tuesday evening and stopped at his sister's in Falmouth, where he remained until Thursday morning, and left about 8 o'clock to walk home, a distance of about nine miles. Previous to his arrival, however, his mother, anxious about his absence, came to the city in search of him, and thus gave rise to the report that he was missing.

Miss Juliet Fenderson made her debut in Boston Friday night. The Journal says: Miss Fenderson is a singer of excellent qualifications, who found at once much favor. Her voice is a soprano of much sweetness and power and she uses it with good effect. She sang for her first selection "Ma la sola," from Donizetti's "Beatrice di Tenda," and in response to an encore she sang with pianoforte accompaniment a song by Borg, entitled "Love may come to-morrow." Her later selection was "Casta Diva" from Norma. The Advertiser says: Miss Fenderson's voice is of good quality, bright and clear. She sings in good style, in some respects, and her manner inspires confidence; one fault à bas, in consequence of forcing her voice tremolo, or rather vibrato, is produced, and steadiness consequently becomes impossible. She was recalled after her first appearance, and sang "Love may come to-morrow," by Borg.

Art Entertainment.

The art entertainment which was given at Rossini Hall last year is to be repeated next month. In compliance with the request of many who were present at the first exhibition and wishing to accommodate more than the limits of the smaller hall would allow, the management have engaged City Hall for Wednesday evening, Nov. 12th, when they hope to present to the public an entertainment even more enjoyable than that which gave so much satisfaction last winter. The Rogers groups will again be represented in marble by life-size figures, several new groups being added. A striking feature of the programme will be the presentation of the "Flowers of Loveliness." Notification of the sale of tickets will be made in a few days.

The New Valuation.

It is said the tax bill for the current year will show that the rates are a trifle higher uptown and correspondingly less in the lower section of the city. A reason for this has been suggested which is that the Back Bay nuisance has affected rents in some localities to such an extent as to materially lessen the selling value of the property. There will be a discount of 3 per cent on all taxes paid before the 15th of next month, instead of the 1st as heretofore. The delay in making out the bills on the new basis has led to the adoption of the change of dates.

Accidents.

Mr. Theodore Harmon was thrown from his carriage and his shoulder and back were injured.

Mrs. Edwin Smith, residing on St. John street, had the wheel of her carriage come off and she was thrown out and severely, but seriously hurt.

A child 3 years old living near the corner of India and Fore streets, hauled a boiling hot coffee pot upon its head and was terribly scalded. The physician thinks the injuries may not prove fatal.

Annie L. Palmer.

The PRESS Saturday morning gave an account of the attack on the schooner Annie L. Palmer of Beothbay while lying in New York harbor. It appears the mate who was so badly hurt, and who wounded two of the pirates, was John L. Newman of this city, formerly mate of the Iris. The pirates secured from the captain a gold watch, chain and seal, valued at $90, $12 in money, and $75 worth of clothing, among the latter a new suit for which he had just paid $40. The cook was completely denuded of clothes.

The Steamer John Brooks in Collision.

Early Saturday morning as the steamer John Brooks was going into Boston harbor, she collided with a schooner and slight damage was sustained by each. The steamer's cut-water was turned aside and partially torn from its fastenings, while the schooner's top-rail on one side was crushed in. The John Brooks went into the dry dock Sunday morning, and will come out again on this morning's tide to make her usual trips to Boston tonight.

The Walking Match.

The match between Shea and Collins will attract a large audience to Lancaster Hall today. The track was surveyed Saturday by Mr. Edwards, Assistant City Engineer, and is 25 laps to the mile. Mr. C. C. Toole of Bangor will act as referee. The men will start at 12 o'clock noon.

Injuries to a Portland Vessel.

Schooner P. S. Lincoln, of and from Portland for New York, with a load of lumber, was struck by a squall Saturday morning, 25 miles north from Race light. Her main boom was carried away, and she made Provincetown for repairs.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

THE EXILES.

To-night "The Exiles" will have its first performance in this city at Portland Theatre, with Getz's beautiful scenery, the magnificent costumes, appointments, reindeer, dog-team and realistic effects. The first act is devoted to the bureau of police in St. Petersburg and the Square of Sherbakoff; the second to the fete in Prince Pierre's palace, and the interior of No. 21 Rue Sherbakoff with the conspirators in council; the third to Siberia and the cross road of the Stone Pillow; the fourth to the governor's palace in Siberia and the great conflagration; the fifth to the ferryman's hut on the Angara and the department of the commandant in the district of Irkutch.

The following will be the cast:

M. Schelm	Mr. L. R. Sherwell
M. Max de Musseres	M. Ed. J. Buckley
Count Valdamir Lanine	Mr. Geo. R. Parks
Col. Palkine	Mr. Mark M. Prince
Carcassin	Mr. D. J. Maginnis
Nicholas Popoff	Mr. Leslie Allen
The Grand Duke Prince Pierre	Mr. H. E. Chase
Toltoi	Mr. Gene Wiley
Surgeon Major	Mr. W. A. Spencer
Peltovich	Mr. A. Z. Chipman
Louvanoff	Mr. S. E. Springer
Lucknow	Mr. J. Taylor
Viravel	Mr. A. F. Gibson
Stanovoi	Mr. C. E. Henry
Tjanor	Mr. B. Morris
Col. Mikaloff	Mr. H. A. Cripps
Capt. Golok	Mr. E. H. Young
M'lle Madegi Lanine	Mrs. Thos. Barry
Countess Tatiana Lanine	Miss Rachel Noah

THE DOUBLE MARRIAGE.

Wednesday and Thursday nights Miss Kate Claxton will appear with her company in the "Double Marriage" at Portland Theatre. The New York Herald says:

Miss Kate Claxton deserves not a little praise for the production, under her management, at the Lyceum Theatre last evening, of Charles Reade's dramatization of "Double Marriage." The audience was large, standing room uncomfortable, and even the veteran "first nighters" saw much to applaud. There is no reason why a play so full of dramatic interest should not become a success. There is in it an attraction of interest that makes every person present content to await the denouement. The piece is destined for a run.

WOODFORD'S CORNER.

The people of Woodford's Corner, Deering, are to have a musical treat on Thursday evening next, in the concert to be given at Lewis Hall. The following is the programme:

Piana Duet, Mrs. Mosher, Miss Addie Chenery.
Song—The Days are Long, Miss Allie Moody.
Song—Forward For Age, Mr. Will Stockbridge.
Duet from "Martha," Mr. Jordan, Mr. Whitehouse.
Harmonica Solo, Mr. Charles Farrell.
Solo—Say not Farewell, Mrs. C. E. Littlefield.
Readings, Miss Celia Valentine.
Piano Solo, Mr. G. M. Wilson.
Duet, Mrs. Nell Shaw, Mr. Will Stockbridge.
Song—What ere Betide, Mrs. Young.
Harmonica Solo, Mr. Charles Farrell.
Duet, Mrs. Littlefield, Miss Moody.
Closing Trio.

THE JUBILEE SINGERS.

The Grand Army will present the Fisk Jubilee Singers for their next attraction at City Hall next Thursday evening. This company has always had a very strong hold upon the American people, and they have well earned the reputation they have secured. They have drawn and will continue to draw largely from the religious community of all denominations. So popular have they been that scores of colored troupes have sprung up, like mushrooms, and have endeavored (vainly) to imitate the original company. The Fisk singers have this to contend against, but their presence, wherever they sing, settles the question of originality. Their faces and voices cannot be counterfeited. The great bass voice of Loudin, the full rich soprano voices of Maggie Porter, Jennie Jackson and Patti Malone, the deep, clear sweet voice of Mabel Lewis, with Ella Sheppard as accompanist, cannot be mistaken. The tickets can now be secured at Stockbridge's.

NOTES.

Everybody will want to hear Josh Billings' lecture at City Hall next Saturday night on "The Probabilities of Life." Get your tickets at Stockbridge's at once.

Chanfrau will appear in "Kit" at Portland Theatre, Friday and Saturday nights, and Mrs. Chanfrau in "Parted," Saturday afternoon.

November 8th, Joseph Jefferson will appear at City Hall in his great specialty of Rip Van Winkle. His appearance will probably be attended by an audience that will crowd City Hall. The sale of seats will open next Wednesday morning at Stockbridge's and there will undoubtedly be a rush.

The sale of seats for Mr. Chanfrau's performances of "Kit" will commence at the theatre box office this morning.

The sale of seats for Helen Potter's Pleiades will commence at Stockbridge's this morning.

PULPIT AND PLATFORM.

CONGRESS SQUARE CHURCH.

Rev. W. F. Stowe of Rockland preached at Congress Square Universalist church, yesterday morning, from Mark ix—24, "Lord I believe. Help thou my unbelief."

The preacher commenced by saying that these words were expressive of the deepest needs of human nature. They came from the anxious heart of a father who went to Jesus as a last resort, begging him to cast out the evil spirit from his son. Jesus made faith a condition of that cure. The father admitted his belief, but doubted while he believed.

The speaker said there is such a thing as true faith at the bottom of doubt. The fact is forced upon us, at every step in life, that there are thousands of people who care little for sectarian creeds, who are suspicious of churches, and who sometimes question the existence of God. I am aware, said he, of the feeling church people have against doubters on account of the flippant talk many of them indulge in, and they can hardly be brought to believe that there can be earnest, honest doubters. But if you want to make a bright youth an infidel put him into a narrow, sectarian Sunday school with a teacher who is a strict, literal interpreter of the Gospel, and by the time he is eighteen years old he will be apt to jump the fence and browse in the pastures of Paine and Ingersoll. If the youth asks for explanations, of this or that, he is choked off with the answer he must trust to prayer. The fact is the belief strongly insisted upon by these sectarians is the traditional belief, or beliefs of churches, what certain fallible men call ordinances, or forms, and all rest on a sacrificial scheme of theology. Most men believe in certain creeds because their fathers did before them, and accept the antiquated heirlooms without investigation. There are earnest doubters, however, who should be treated with sympathy. Remember that Thomas was a doubter.

Outside of the church there is a large body of men and women who cannot accept traditions and dogmas that are called Christianity. They find no creed that touches their own experiences. They have more belief in God than those in the churches, and it is the fault of the churches themselves that these men do not belong to them. Ruskin says the best men of this age are not members of the churches, and the fact that the most powerful minds of the age, poets, philosophers, scientific men, are not so, is no sign that they are therefore unbelievers. They don't believe in popular creeds but in moral law, and a distinction between right and wrong; in the Christianity of Christ. If you wait until all doubts are removed you must wait till after death. No one creed can hold all Christianity.

The question may be asked shall science and art go on enlarging their boundaries while religion remains stationary? If Christianity is not a revelation but a discovery of the human intellect then, in time, we must throw Christianity aside. The sticking point of all truth is the existence of God. The answer to our questions that may be found in the New Testament are more satisfactory than all the science in the world for they will do more than anything else to remove all doubts.

DR. BOLLES' LECTURE.

Dr. Bolles will deliver the second of his lectures at Plymouth Church to-night. This time on "Westminister and South Kensington." Everybody who has ever listened to the Doctor's graphic descriptions, and witnessed the beautiful scenes thrown upon the canvass will wish to attend this lecture.

NOTES.

Rt. Rev. Bishop Healey will dedicate the new Catholic church at Hallowell today, and also the church at Augusta which has recently been enlarged and newly frescoed. The Bishop will be assisted by the pastor, Rev. Daniel W. Murphy and his two brothers, Rev. J. W. and L. W. Murphy.

Rev. J. M. Loudon of Halifax preached an able sermon yesterday forenoon at Casco street church.

Rev. John Wills preached at Park street church yesterday morning on "The Gospel of Universal Salvation."

Rev. C. A. Hayden lectured at India street church last evening on "The age of machinery, of the worship of men made gods."

Rev. A. S. Ladd began a series of sermons to young men, under the auspices of the Christian Association last evening at Congress street church.

Elder Thomas of St. John, N. B., preached to the Disciples of Christ, morning and evening.

Saccarappa.

Mr. Stevens is building a new house on Lamb street, Cumberland Mills.

The Cumberland Mills paper company are making preparations to manufacture enamelled paper.

The lessees of the old saw-mill on the upper falls are to soon begin the manufacture of lumber there.

Work in the duck mill was suspended for two days last week, caused by a break in the penstock that supplies the water-wheel.

Thursday night Mr. John Bisby's house on the Gorham road was broken into and some jewelry stolen. The same night the cellar of Mr. A. F. Warren's house on Main street was raided and some provisions taken.

FIRE.

J. F. Sisk's Clothing Store.

Last evening about 6.15 o'clock an alarm was pulled in from box 23, corner of Market and Commercial streets. The fire department was promptly on hand and discovered flames issuing from the second story of No. 171 Fore street, the store occupied by James F. Sisk, clothier. Upon investigation Chief Engineer Littlefield found that the second story, in which the fire was located, was occupied as a sort of lumber room filled with old paper boxes, rags, and waste of different kinds. There was no stove, or stove-pipe, in the immediate vicinity of the fire, or any means by which the fire could have caught, unless by spontaneous combustion, by matches having been dropped on the floor and ignited by rats, or by incendiaries. There was a scuttle close by that opened into the store beneath, and by prying open the scuttle, and playing the water through it from the store, the flames were extinguished with slight damage to the building. The water however notwithstanding holes were made through the ceiling to let the water through the floor with as little injury as possible to the clothing stock below—wet the goods pretty thoroughly.

Mr. Sisk says he had an insurance on his stock for $2000 with Dow & Palmer. The name of the company he could not recall. His loss he could not estimate at the time of writing, but Mr. George W. Rich, the clothier, thought the damage would not be covered by the insurance.

There was a rumor current that two men were arrested on suspicion of setting the fire as they were leaving the rear of the building, but this is not the fact. There was another story that a man was seen to throw some inflammable material from the second story just before the fire, but this rumor could not be traced to any reliable source. Mr. Sisk was away at the time of the fire, but arrived home just after the flames were extinguished. The Todd hydrant at the corner of Exchange and Fore streets was in good condition Mr. Littlefield informs us, and could have furnished all the water wanted if its use had been necessary.

Real Estate.

The following real estate transfers were recorded in this county Saturday:

Portland—James M. Kimball to Thomas A. Foster, land on Brown street.

Gorham—Katherine B. McL. Lewis to the Methodist Episcopal Church of Gorham, land on School street.

Frederic Robie to Methodist Episcopal Church of Gorham, land on School street.

Yarmouth.

A very interesting temperance meeting was held Friday evening at the Reform Club room, in the Institute. Excellent remarks were made by Eld. R. R. York, Capt. T. G. Mitchell, Ammi R. Mitchell, C. G. Woodman, and others of the Yarmouth club, and Mr. Loring of the Ferry Village club. James H. Doughty, Ammi R. Mitchell and Stephen C. True were chosen delegates to the County Convention, to be held at Saccarappa, Oct. 30 and 31.

Rehearsals are now held, preparatory to the production of the operetta "Golden Hair and Three Bears," which will be brought out soon at the First Parish church by Miss Annie Burbank.

James A. Gooch, Esq., a smart and talented young man, who is studying to be a lawyer, is about to take up his residence in Stillwater, Minn.

A Pious Fraud.

One Libby, professing to be a student in the Lewiston Theological School, appears to be an unmitigated scoundrel. His plan is to represent himself as selling Free Baptist publications, but the books having failed to arrive he is destitute of friends and wishes to go home; therefore he wants a loan of a few dollars in his emergency, and gives a due bill for it. In this way he has victimized parties in Dover, Bangor and several other places, stating that he lived on Pleasant street, in Auburn, and belonged to Rev. Jason Mariner's church. Later he appears at Hallowell, where he makes the same general statements, as to business and standing, but belongs to the Essex street Free Baptist church, and exhibits a letter of recommendation from Rev. Mr. Howard, pastor. This letter is a forgery, and the public is cautioned against him as an impostor.

STATE NEWS.

ANDROSCOGGIN COUNTY.

The cash receipts at Music Hall, Lewiston, Thursday evening, on the Boston Museum Company's appearance, were the largest of any evening since the hall was built, and amounted to $642.35.

AROOSTOOK COUNTY.

A few days ago Mr. Miller, the owner of the starch factory at Washburn, came to Canton to get $3000, intending to go back that evening, but was detained till the next day. Two men were on the way home, when going through the woods they were confronted by two men with loaded revolvers who demanded their money. On searching them but little money was found, which they took, together with a bottle of the ardent. The next day a horse and wagon were found in the woods, and as yet no owner comes to claim the same.

Burglars broke into the express office at Fort Fairfield and smashed in the door of the safe wherein were some $700 or $800. Not being able to gain access to the treasures, they proceeded to Schumaker's clothing store, broke a pane of glass and took from the stock several overcoats and some other articles to the value of $30 or $40. As yet no clue to thieves has been found.

KENNEBEC COUNTY.

Prof. Lyford of Colby University has recently invented apparatus for illustrating the form of the moon's orbit as it accompanies the earth around the sun: It renders that point, otherwise somewhat blind, very clear and satisfactory.

PENOBSCOT COUNTY.

Last Thursday morning a little two year old daughter of Mr. C. P. McCrillis of Dexter, fell from a chair and when taken up one side of her body was found to be paralyzed.

YORK COUNTY.

Capt. Wm. Stevenson of Saco died on Friday, at the age of 86. Just prior to the war of 1812 he was pressed from our merchant service on board of a British man-of-war, from which he was no sooner released than he shipped in the American navy, where he served until the close of the hostilities between the two nations. The incidents of the engagement between the Constitution and the Java were fresh in his memory to the last. He served under Com. Perry on the lakes, and was discharged at Sackett's Harbor, from which place he walked to Biddeford.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THE PRESS.

[London Society.]

A Romance of the Prince of Wales's Garden-Party.

And with this parting statement, which might, indeed, have been considered a slap in the face of Mrs. Rector, Miss Le Deene shook hands with her spiritual adviser, and walked solitary up the hillside and over the cliffs.

A tall, angular woman, who followed no fashion and adopted no party. Who, living in Southbay, contemned Southbay. Who, born in Southbay, was not quite of Southbay. Who had brought ways and thoughts into Southbay that Southbay deemed were foreign to its nature; and yet who, for all her travelling and reading and mixing with society, was as true and typical a Southbaian as any who had lived in the place from birth to burial.

The daughter of a bishop, the granddaughter of a judge—the judge born in Southbay, the bishop born in Southbay too (the little place had sent out many a noted man)—she returned after a long time, to cast in her lot with the descendants of her progenitors, and elected to do several things which the Southbaians viewed with suspicion.

Unto herself she was a rule, and unto her she permitted no man or woman to dictate.

She had tried various places of residence and various ways of life; but after all—after the ups and downs, the ins and outs—she came back to Southbay, as people whose position elsewhere was most uncertain, had a habit of doing.

In Southbay she was to a certain extent a power. Southbay said, "Miss Le Deene had her notions about things" or her "special whims"; but Southbay did not controvert her notions or contradict her whims. No; not even when she visited the Arkley, who had not responded to the patronage of Southbay.

That genial town only remarked, "Miss Le Deene perhaps is right; at all events she can do what we cannot."

Therefore Southbay, when once it found Mrs. Arkley from home was content to leave her so, while Mrs. Arkley seemed more than content to be left.

But Miss Le Deene was not content so to be left. She had taken a fancy to Mrs. Arkley. Whether her husband were king or kaiser, whether she had sprung from the people, or were a scion of some ancient stock, signified not a pin to the bishop's daughter. That lady understood at first sight the wife of the new agent was a gentlewoman, and the loveliest woman she had ever beheld.

She was not handsome, or beautiful or pretty. No sculptor would have craved to chisel her features. No artist would entreat to portray a perfect face.

She had no beauty of the devil wherewith to craze the pen of a certain order of modern novelists; but she was lovely—simply, wholly, entirely.

When you looked at her you could wish nothing more, you could suggest nothing less. You never paused to think whether her features were regular, her figure of the best proportions; but when you saw her smile, heard her voice, felt the warm clasp of her hand, you knew it was just fair, honest, pure Susan Arkley, and thought her with Miss Le Deene, a most lovely and perfect creature.

As her vistor drew near she was standing under a great beech tree that grew in front of the cottage, with her year-old baby in her arms—a fair picture.

How tall? you ask. Well, that was one of the questions no one who ever saw her thought of asking; but she scarcely reached the middle height; a slight graceful creature, hair of the warmest shade of brown, red almost when she was a little toddling mite, but which had mellowed into the brightest, sunniest, richest brown imaginable.

There was a little wave in it too, such as is to be found often in such hair, and it was drawn back from her forehead and rippled in soft curves about her ears and was drawn together behind in a knot.

Hers was the clear creamy skin which accompanies such hair, and she had the tender hazel eyes, shaded by the long black lashes sometimes wanting in that conjunction.

Sweet at eyes, innocent as a child's, and yet earnest with all a woman's depth of tenderness: eyes that could answer to another's mood, smile back smiles, melt into pity, weep tears of sympathy, look steadfastly out on life; eyes a man might well love to see in the face of his wife, his daughter or his mother; and if once you had beheld shining at you with the glamour of love or friendship, you would forget never again till all love and all friendship were forgotten too.

For the rest, what was there? A calm white brow; cheeks never brilliant with colour, save when emotion tinted or excitement flushed them. If you had taken the delicate leaf of a blush rose and laid it against her cheek, the colour faintly mantling there would scarcely have outvied it. Her nose was small and straight, but belonged to no recognized order; and her mouth was frank, sweet, gracious.

If there was a firmness about the lower part of her face which spoke of a strength her eyes seemed to belie, it was softened down by the tenderness of her expression, shaded off by the lovely curve of her lips, and the sweet dimples lying in transparent hiding for the first smile to discover and reveal.

A girl almost in appearance, and yet a woman who had left her teens behind her one summer birthday some six years agone.

"I am all alone," she said, gaily coming forward over the greensward to meet Miss Le Deene—"all alone, except baby and Betty. Every one else is off to see the show; baby is too young and Betty too old to care for such vanities."

"But you, Mrs. Arkley—I was perfectly amazed not to meet you to-day. Without offence, I suppose I may say you are not too young—as you certainly are not too old—to enjoy a gala-day."

Mrs. Arkley laughed as, with the gesture of one well accustomed to such pastime, she tossed up baby and held him high in the air, she looking at him with merry upturned face, he crowing in the intensity of his delight.

"Forgive me," she said the next moment, with a deprecating smile, perceiving that Miss Le Deene failed to see how she had originated any amusing idea. "I could not help laughing at your notion that I was likely to be attracted by fêtes and festivals. These are for other folks—are not they, boy darling? The fact is I have seen so many shows that I do not think I should fret if I never saw another. One evening I came home from a great party, and took off my finery, glass slippers and all, and do not feel as if I should ever care to walk into fairyland again, unless—unless an impossibility came to pass."

"Were you so unhappy at that—that great party you speak of?" asked Miss Le Deene.

"Unhappy!" cried Mrs. Arkley. "O, dear, no! It was fairyland I passed through that day, and I found an enchanted prince there. I suppose it is the bells—the influence of the wedding—memory—something which makes me talk in this light-minded way. Pray come in—you must be so tired—and have some tea. Betty is making it."

"Shall I not have the pleasure of seeing your husband?" asked Miss Le Deene, passing through a window opening to the ground, and wreathed in a green frame of tangled clematis and passion-flower and roses.

"I am afraid not," Mrs. Arkley answered; but her tone was slower and her voice graver now, her visitor noticed. "He must go down to the tenants' dinner, and I scarcely think he will come back home first."

"Ahem! Something wrong here," decided Miss Le Deene. "My lady's pretty tongue does not wag so fast or so glibly when she speaks of the real lord and master as it did when she talked of the fairy prince. That is why she does not care for shows, and why festivals and feasts are alike uninviting."

"Is your husband very shy, Mrs. Arkley?" asked the judge's grand-daughter blandly and insinuatingly, as that functionary might have put a similar question from the bench.

"No, he is not shy," answered Mrs. Arkley, but she said the words thoughtfully, and half hid her face in baby's neck.

"Perhaps he is very proud?" suggested Miss Le Deene, with a lightsome smile, intended to conceal the real artfulness of the inquiry.

"No, certainly not proud," said the young wife dreamily, "though if any one ever had cause to be proud it is he;" and as she spoke a soft light came into her eyes, like a sweet effect of tearful sunshine.

"I have heard," remarked Miss Le Deene—"a little bird whispered the story about Southbay—that Captain Arkley has greatly distinguished himself."

Mrs. Arkley smiled.

"O, yes, indeed! More, far more than that; but he does not like me to speak about it. He won't talk of such things himself, or allow me to talk of them either."

"One can see who is master here," considered Miss Le Deene, who, unlike Sarah, had never called any man lord, with amazement, and who could not avoid feeling a pitying contempt for a woman who even professed to obey her husband; but she only said aloud, "The Victoria Cross was conferred upon him, was it not?"

"Yes," answered Mrs. Arkley, with a wistful far-away look and a repressed sigh.

She was thinking, poor soul, it might sometimes be a decoration dearly bought, and that, reversing the usual order of things, not even such a crown could lighten the burden of a life-long cross.

At that moment a servant came in with tea. Never did interrupting seem more welcome.

"Take baby," said the mother, and her voice was full of unshed tears, "and put him to sleep, please, Betty. Our little household seems quite demoralized to-day, Miss Le Deene; but then we have not a Mr. Forrest married every week."

"Do you know him personally?" asked Miss Le Deene.

"Intimately. He has been a dear friend of ours for years past."

"Indeed!" commented Miss Le Deene, feeling puzzled by the statement.

Though Mr. Forrest's father had risen "quite from the people," so the Southbay babble had it, still he had risen from the people of Southbay; and, spite of the fact that scarcely anyone in the town was acquainted with him even by sight, the individual who possessed all the great Forrest properties, all the shore rights and mineral rights, and Heaven only knows how many rights besides, seemed a great man even in the eyes of the bishop's daughter.

Miss Le Deene sipped her tea in silence. There was a certain dreaminess about the atmosphere of the pretty drawing-room, and Miss Le Deene felt meditative. She did not understand the Arkleys; did not comprehend any one electing to live in a lonely cottage, when a good house in Southbay was to be had for a song; could not see why Mr. and Mrs. Arkley persisted in refusing the invitations sent them for tea, dinner, a little evening; why Mrs. Arkley was seen so rarely in Southbay, and Captain Arkley, as one might say, never. Two whole months at Southcliffe, and stranger to Southbay than though they had lived hundreds of miles away, toiling across the hills to Southchurch, and keeping themselves aloof, as if he were a duke and she a duchess.

Indeed the Duchess of Landless had behaved herself very differently while taking the air and sea-baths at Southbay. Once, when overtaken by a thunderstorm, she sought refuge in widow Harting's cottage, where she seated herself quite affably, and gave the widow's little granddaughter a threepennypiece when the shower passed over.

Miss Le Deene had heard some rumor of a severe wound Captain Arkley received when fighting; who was it amongst—the the Chinese, or the South Sea Islanders, or the Tartars, or any other people? It did not much signify to Southbay where the soldiers of England had fought or were fighting. At all events, she knew tidings to that effect had reached the little town. Perhaps it had touched his head or spoiled his temper.

A certain admiral of her acquaintance, who returned home short of a leg, grew simply unbearable while the wind was in the east; while she remembered a Waterloo veteran, of whom his relations said whenever his overnight potations had been too strong, he always declared, "That bullet is troubling me again."

Perhaps Captain Arkley grew at times unbearable; perhaps, indeed, he was always unbearable and preferred his own temper to any other society. Miss Le Deene had met with two or three eccentric people, who, though sound of limb and harboring no bullets, had preferred their company to the best which could be offered them.

Poverty did not cause the Arkleys to live at such an out-of-the-way spot as Southcliffe; of that Miss Le Deene felt perfectly satisfied. The interior of the cottage was furnished in the most expensive manner: nothing in the way of comfort or luxury, for which the modest rooms afforded space, was absent. Rich hangings, rare china, exquisite pictures, a magnificent piano; a thousand little nicknacks that must—so she silently appraised their value—have cost a small fortune.

The tea-service in its way was daintily elegant; and "every thread"—I quote Miss Le Deene's statement verbatim, as made to her cronies afterwards—"of Master Son and Heir's dress would bear the closest inspection."

As for the flowers, "the place," said Miss Le Deene, is like a horticultural show—banks of them, inside and out; a perfect waste of money, I call it; and on the top of Southcliffe, too, where there is not a creature but themselves to see the exhibition. But she is the fairest flower of them all; and I do say it is a thousand pities her friends let her marry him, that I do."

And whatever might be thought of the latter part of Miss Le Deene's sentence, there could be no question but that, as has been said before, Mrs. Arkley was as sweet a flower as a man need desire to see in town or country, in crowded rooms amongst others rare and lovely, or blooming in sweet simplicity on the lonely mountain side.

While her visitor was exercising her astute mind in wandering over all likely possibilities, threading her devious way through pros and cons innumerable, Mrs. Arkley's thoughts had also been upon a journey. Backwards and forwards they had strayed, now over the past, again looking hopefully into the future finally reverting to the present; when they do so, she found that a few minute's silence, which appeared as she woke from her reverie to have lasted much longer than was really the case, had fallen upon herself and her visitor, whose eyes, with no hint of speculation in them, were now fastened on the blue sea, which she beheld through a tracery of leaves glittering in the distance.

On the air there came frequent whiffs from the hedge of sweetbrier that bounded one portion of the lawn. The scent was not constantly perceptible, but at intervals it wandered into the room, for a moment putting out of court the fragrance of roses and the odor of lilies.

Ever after, even in the dead winter, when Miss De Deene thought of Mrs. Arkley—which was often—the vision of that charming lady appeared surrounded by a wealth of flowers, while across the waters of memory there stole subtly and gently the perfume of sweet briier borne on the breath of a faint west wind.

Who amongst us has not some association of the kind? Heaven grant, friends, that yours may be as pure and pleasant as that which brought the memory of Mrs. Arkley wafted to the heart of a rugged looking elderly lady!

"You must excuse my preoccupation," said Mrs. Arkley, blushing as if she alone had been engrossed in thought; "but I began marvelling why you asked if my husband were proud; was it?"—she put the question with a slight hesitancy, and yet archly too—"because we were not present at my sister's wedding?"

"Good gracious, no!" answered Miss Le Deene, in blunt astonishment, putting down her cup that she might stare the better at Mrs. Arkley. "Till this moment I was not even aware that you had a sister."

"Not aware that I had a sister?" repeated Mrs. Arkley laughing outright.

"No; how should I know anything about her? Now that I do know I congratulate you on the ocassion of her marriage, if it be a matter meet for congratulation. I hope she has made what the world calls a good match?"

"I call it a good match in every respect," answered Mrs. Arkley, the dimples in her face rippling over with fun.

"But I dare say you are romantic. I should not like to take your opinion exactly on a question of this kind. Is the gentleman—has he, in a word, plenty of money?"

"Well, yes," was the reply, "He is young, rich, handsome, kind, generous, considerate."

"A goodly list of virtues," remarked Miss Le Deene.

"And his name is Forrest," added Mrs. Arkly slyly.

"No! you cannot mean that—not our Mr. Forrest! I believe, you wicked creature, you have been making fun of me all this time. I almost doubt whether you possess a sister."

"Indeed I do—three of them."

"And one is really married to a gentleman named Forrest?"

"To our Mr. Forrest as you call him."

"But, my dear, how can that be? Mr. Forrest is only married to-day, and to a daughter of the Reverend Sir Hubert Yarrell."

"To Milly; yes, my dear sister, I thought all Southbay knew that."

If Miss Le Deene had spoken her mind, she would have answered that all Southbay should know it before she slept; but she refrained from that utterance, and tried to conceal the depth of the conversational abyss into which she felt she had descended, by talking loquaciously concerning the would-be wisdom of Southbay on matters which did not concern its interests in the least, and its inconceivable ignorance on points that were really important to it; by laughing at the dense stupidity of the little town, and her own stupidity as an inhabitant; telling Mrs. Arkley she was a sly puss, though she looked as innocent as her own baby; winding up by an assurance that the first time she saw Captain Arkley she would complain of having been so perplexed by his pretty wife as never a sober spinster was mystified and perplexed before.

And so covering what she felt had been a social defeat—a complete rout from a stranger she had rather intended to patronize with a bold front and an abundance of badinage—Miss Le Deene took her leave and wended her way back to Southbay, marvelling greatly as she walked along.

Just before she reached the Parade she met that Mr. Albyn who ought, Southbay had decided, to have been agent instead of Mr. Arkley. He was a clever young man, possessed of manners even more decided than those which rendered Miss Le Deene remarkable, and given to a directness of speech which stood him in better stead perhaps in the London courts than in the drawing-rooms of his native Southbay.

He did not come often to Southbay now, and it was a long time—nearly twelve months—since Miss Le Deene had seen him.

"Going to the dinner?" he asked, when the first salutations were over.

"Are you?" said Miss Le Deene, who was impervious to his raillery.

"Yes," he answered, "I intend doing so presently; and you—"

"Have been drinking tea with the agent's wife."

"Did you see the agent?"

"No; and I do so want to see him, for I fancy there must be something odd about him."

"Your fancy has as usual served its mistress faithfully," remarked Mr. Albyn.

"What is it that is wrong?" asked the lady eagerly. "None of us have ever been able to know what to make of them since they took up their quarters at Southcliffe."

"And what did you make of them over the dish of tea?" suggested the young man as a leader.

"Well, I am quite as much in the dark as ever. I do not think Mrs. Arkley's could have been a love match, for her face clouds whenever her husband is mentioned; and though she spoke quite pleasantly about her sister's marriage, still you must remember they were not at the wedding, and I concluded she felt the difference between her own position as wife to a mere agent, when contrasted with the much more suitable alliance Miss Millicent Yarrell has contracted."

"And you think she wishes she had done as well?"

"I do, naturally."

Hearing this, Mr. Albyn burst into what Miss Le Deene in her precise moments called "one of his great horse-laughs."

"That is too good!" he exclaimed. "I beg your pardon, but I cannot help laughing. Why, Forrest wanted to marry Mrs. Arkley herself. He followed her about like her shadow; and it is said she actually accepted him about a quarter of an hour before she met her present husband just back from the wars. She married Captain Arkley against the wishes of all her people, for Sir Hubert counts as a mere nobody; and the loving pair would not have had a shilling upon which to start housekeeping if it had not been for Forrest. And now I must say good-bye, Miss Le Deene."

And so likewise we must say good-bye to Miss Le Deene, and go back more than a dozen years, into the 'sixties.

THE WONDERFUL

Effects of the Extract of

CELERY AND CHAMOMILE UPON THE NERVOUS

System and Digestive Organs

IN CURING ESPECIALLY SICK HEADACHE,

Nervous Headache, Neuralgia, Nervousness,

PARALYSIS AND INDIGESTION, AND PREVENTING,

Neuralgia of the Heart and Sudden Death.

THIS PREPARATION HAS WON A REPUTATION UNKNOWN TO ANY OTHER ARTICLE, FOR THE CURE AND PREVENTION OF THESE DISEASES. READ THE FOLLOWING INTERESTING STATEMENT OF THIS DISCOVERY.

Celery has only come into public notice within the last few years as a nervine, but scientific experiments and experience have proved beyond a doubt that it controls nervous irritation and periodic nervous and sick headache to a marked degree.

But a combination of the EXTRACT OF CELERY AND CHAMOMILE, which has been but recently introduced to the profession and the public by myself, has produced such marvellous results in curing nervousness and headaches, and especially nervous and sick headaches, neuralgia, indigestion and sleeplessness, that it has excited public attention and newspaper comments; and, therefore, I give the following information to the public to avoid answering hundreds of letters of inquiry about them:

My Celery and Chamomile Pills, for the cure of headaches and nervousness, are prepared under my supervision, and are intended expressly to cure headache, neuralgia, indigestion, sleeplessness and nervousness, and will cure any case where no organic disease of the brain or spinal cord exists. Hundreds of cases of many years standing have been cured. No matter how chronic or obstinate the case may be, a permanent cure is morally certain. This statement is made after years of experience in their use in the general practice of medicine.

These pills are also valuable for school children who suffer from nervous headaches, caused by an overworked brain in their studies, and for all classes of hard brain workers, whose over-taxed nervous centres need repair and sedation. Nervous tremor, weakness and paralysis are being daily cured by these pills. They correct costiveness but are not purgative.
